August 28, 2014 | Washington, DC: NovaStar Apps are proud to announce the launch of our first game app in the market this fall. The game consists of an exciting interface with excellent interactive features. The company has plans to give away the proceeds from their revenue to a charity they are supporting. The company currently operates in the Washington DC area of the United States with plans for the future expansions.

When contacted, Matt Naqvi, the CEO of the company, said, "We are really excited to launch a game we feel everyone will enjoy. This is a kind of social responsibility wrapped in a fun package, a win-win for everyone, including our charity to help animals." He further added, "This game is a result of a vision that we had for some time now."

According to the sources, the original demo of the game has sent a wave of excitement among the gaming community. The game is only expected to grow in the future. You can visit their twitter page to keep in touch with all the latest proceedings of their upcoming apps.
